

PUBLISHED DAILY AND TRI-WEEKLY BY EDGAR SNOWDEN.

MONDAY EVENING, NOVEMBER 19, 1877

As everybody in the South feels kindly disposed toward the President, it is not surprising that his faults should be looked upon leniently by the people of that section, and that when excuses for his actions are required there should be found in the South numbers of peo ple willing to make, and anxious to receive them, but the attempt of some, to attribute his acknowledgment of "blunders" to satire, had too slight a foundation to be accepted, and those who look beneath the surface of things, and endeavor to discover the true causes of human actions, are sustained in the literal interpretation of his late letter by the report of his interview that interview, he told the committee that they "would have less cause for complaint hereafter." He thus not only reiterates what he said in his letter to Gov. Rice, of Massachusetts, but goes further and confesses that his "blunders" are others. legitimate causes of complaint. When it is re membered that what he now considers as "blunders" and as just "causes of complaint' are the measures springing out of his home-rule and conciliatory policy, patriotic men, of all shades of opinion, will have less cause for felicitating themselves upon the successful result of their efforts last February in securing his peaceful inauguration than they have heretofore supposed they had.

Mr. King, the collector of the port of New Orleans, finding that he was certainly to be de posed, suddenly developed a degree of regard for the President's feelings and for the public good that is truly remarkable. In a letter to Mr. Hayes, after he had been informed that he had been removed and his successor appointed, he said,"if my retention will embarrass you in any manner please accept my resignation; disregard me entirely; act for the success of the Administration and passages from it, much to the delight of the hon at his reception on Saturday expressed a when a man of gentrel appearance, but with a the prosperity of Louisians; my interests are trifl. The recent account of the prevalency of leprosy in San Francisco is supplemented by a later one, giving a description of three cases of the same disease that have just been discovered in New York. From the history and symptoms of the cases, as parrated, we are inclined to believe that leprosy, of the character described, prevails in every city of the world-in other words that the disease alluded to is not true leprosy, but is of more recent syphilitic origin, and that the accounts to which we refer were written for the purpose of increasing the existing antipathy to the Chinese.

The bill introduced into the United States fore a large crowd. House of Representatives, last Saturday, by Mr. Stephens, of Georgia, authorizes the issue of $350,000,000 of exchequer bills for the redemption of the legal tender notes in sums of $50 and its multiple, to be receivable for all public and private dues, and also for a series of 3 per cent. bonds, to be used in retiring bonds bearing a higher rate of interest, until exchequer bills and coin shall be on a par. The Secretary is required to obtain coin for resumption by the sale of 4½ per cent. bonds in Europe.

A bill is now before Congress to enable Indians to become citizens of the United States. We hope it may pass. The rightful owners of the country and those who have resided within its borders uninterruptedly for untold generations should certainly be entitled to the privileges readily granted to newly arrived foreigners, especially when they have arrived at such a state of civilization as to be allowed treaty making powers and to subject them to indictments by grand juries.

We are glad that there were in the United States House of Representatives, last Saturday, a sufficient number of democrats to defeat the ill-advised measure for a reduction of the army. The proposed reduction was a party measure, but the action of the House shows that party policy, when, in the opinions of individual democrats, it is contrary to the best interests of the country, is insufficient to control their votes. THE ARMY BILL PASSED. The Army Appropriation bill was received from the House of Representatives with three

Immediately after the rending of the journal the House, by a vote of 133 to 79, went into committee of the whole, and had under consideration the bill making an appropriation for the Paris Exposition. Mr. Cox opposed the bill, and made a most amusing speech. Mr. Hewitt, of N. Y., replied to Mr. Cox in part, and favored the passage of the bill.

MR. COX'S SPEECH. Mr. Cox, of New York, made a very humorous speech in the House to-day, in which he ridiculed the proposed corn kitchen of Mr. Hewitt, at the Paris Exposition, until the whole House fairly roared. The opponents of the bill to repeal the resumption act were again successful in staving off action upon the bill to day, by giving precedence to the Paris Exposition bill, and it is now not improbable that the extra session may pass without the repeal.

After the reports had been made to the caucus, a free discussion ensued as to the propriety and the probable effects of the President's policy in case it should be pursued by him and acquiesced in by the Senate. The interchange of views developed an almost unanimous opinion that the policy of appointing democrats to office in the South is not wise or sound, and even those Senators who are most distinctively known as "friends of the Administration" expressed doubts whether its pursuance would have the effect of which the President is sanguine.

The Moniteur is absolutely certain that the Official Journal of to-morrow will announce the acceptance of the resignation of the Ministers. Nothing definite, however, has been dccided relative to the composition of this new Cabinet. The Constitutionalists hesitate to accept the list of Ministers which has been proposed, and would prefer to have some Ministers taken from the Left Centre. A Wife Murder in Church.

A dispatch from Philadelphia says: A tragedy without a parallel in the history of this or any other city's crime was enacted in the Lombard street Protestant Episcopal Church of the Ascension yesterday. The congregation had assembled and the pastor had begun his sermon, in one of the rear pows. The interruption which his entrance caused was but slight, and before the sermon was concluded his presence was forgotten. When the benediction was about to be given, however, he jumped to his feet and walked to a pew directly behind the one occupied by Mrs Elizabeth Sayres. He hesitated for a moment before entering, but finally went in and assumed a reverential air until the blessing was concluded.

No sooner had the last words of the minister died away than the stranger quickly drew a l'erringer pistol from his pocket, and, taking deliberate aim, shot Mrs. Sayres in the back. There were screams of alarm from the women in the church, and the men, as soon as they could recover from the paralysis which seemed to be upon them, rushed to where the body had fallen. The man who had fired stood still for a mo ment and looked upon his work. Then he coolly returned the weapon to his pocket and walked rapidly out of the building.

Only one gentleman, a descon, Goo. Miller, had the presence of mind to follow him. When the former quitted the building he walked rapidly towards Eleventh and Lombard sts., where he was overtaken and arrested by his pursuer, who recognized the man as Alexander B.

Sayres, the wounded woman's husband. When Mr. Miller asked the reason for his torrible conduct he made no reply, but began complaining of his head, and walked quietly with him to the station. Meantime Mrs Sayres was removed to the basement of the church. The blood from her wound stained the floor as they carried her along, and she seemed to be dying. The ball, an unusually large one, had entered the back over the left lung. The doctor probed for it, but was unable to find the lodging place. Mrs. Sayres, rapidly sinking, was then removed pected to live through the night. Sayres is either temporarily deranged or pretends to be. No reason is assigned for his murderous assault. It is said that the man was a monomaniac on the subject of dying in the poorhouse, and that he had charged his wife and two sons with conspiracy to ruin him. The event causes great excitement and indignation. At seven o'clock in the evening a magistrate took her deposition at the hespital. She did not see who shot her, but believed that her husband had done it, and that he had always treated her badly. She then made her will, bequeathing her property in trust for her step-children, she being Sayres' second wife. A few moments af-terwards she became unconscious, in which condition she still lies, the physicians expressing the opinion that she would die during the night. The engine was lifted from the rails, and ran on the ties for nearly 100 yards before it was capsized into a shallow ditch, as was also the tender, both being completely demolished. The engineer and fireman remained at their posts until the locomotive capsized, and were scalded in a horrible manner. They were removed to a house close by, where they lingered in intense agony during the night. The fireman died at three o'clock and the engineer at six o'clock yester-

News of the Day.

Policeman White and the murderer Rande are improving, and the prospects now are that both will recover. Three or four citizens of St. Elmo, Ill., visited Rande at St. Louis Satur day, but all of them did not wholly identify him as the man who killed two citizens of that place last summer. There is good eviden e. however, to prove that he is the right man. In an interview he told a reporter he believed in the equal distribution of property, and had at tempted to do some of the distributing himself; that he had robbed fifty seven houses during the past summer, and had collected to gether about a thousand dollars worth of property, which be intended to take to town on the Lake Shore and Michigan Southern railroad, where he expected to spend the winter luxu riously.
